Three Thousand Homeless.

Three thousand are homeless, according to an estimate by Ernest E. White, n of San Diego relief commit tee. Of these 600 are sheltered on the hillsides at Palm station, the highest point near Otay city. A tent colony of In other sections hotels, churches, hospitals and individual homes have been thrown open to the refugees. Supplies accumulated at chamber of commerce relief headquarters were transported in auto trucks to those localities where the roads were passable, while boats carried food and clothing to the more inaccessible regions. 200 has been established at San Ysidro

Coroner Otto Marsh said he was using every means at his command to obtain as quickly as possible an apparently correct list of those who lost their lives, but that it probably would be a week before he could hope for anything like a complete list.

For four days the only means of communication open to San Diego has been the wireless telegraph and ocean vessels. This fact delayed news of the disasters.

Levee at West Hickman, Ky., Gives Way Before Floods;

800 People Made Homeless HICKMAN, Ky., January 31.-The West ckman levee gave way early today and the Mississippi river is now flooding a large area in the manufacturing district water is slowly backing up into the business section. About 800 people have so far been rendered homeless.

Levee Frequently Breaks.

The West Hickman levee frequently rives way under the pressure of high fississippi at that point. It protects several manufacturing plants situated the homes of factory workers who live in the lowlands. The principal business section is above the bend in the river and safe from ordinary flood water, but when the levee breaks the water usually backs up into the main street, and into the stores to a depth of two or three feet. The residential section is situated on high ground rising abruptly from the main street to a height of fifty feet or more. bugh the breaking of the West an levee cannot do any great to Hickman, it always causes rable anxiety among the encamage to Hickman, it always causes considerable anxiety among the engineers charged with the safety of the great government levee which protects the Reelfoot district in west Tennessee and which begins just below Hickman and a short distance back of the local levee.

U. S. SUPREME COURT RULES AGAINST LAMAR

Conviction for Impersonation With Intent to Defraud Is Upheld.

David Lamar, convicted in the New York federal courts on charges of im-personating an officer of the United States with intent to defraud, lost his appeal in the Supreme Court of the United States today. The New York court is free to enforce penitentiary sentenca.

Lamar was sentenced to imprisonment in the federal penitentiary at Atanta, Ga., for two years.

He was charged with pretending to be A. Mitchell Palmer, then a repesentative in Congress, and described in the indictment as "an officer of the Bergt. Hugo Petry of the 11th U. S. government of the United States," with intent to defraud Lewis Cass Ledyard,

Basis of Lamar's Appeal.

Lamar's appeal was based largely on the claim that a representative in Con-gress is not an officer of the United tates. Justice Holmes, in announcing Saturday night.

Officers advanced the theory that when finished he turned out the lights and then became entangled in a rope, and either was stunned by a fall as a result or could not extricate himself sense in which that term was used in the Constitution, because even in the same statute words and phrases might have a different meaning.

Lamar listened to Justice Holmes announce the court's decision. He had accepted the privilege extended to all litigants before the court of sitting within the rail reserving space for the har. He hastened into the clerk's efth casualties published during the

The court's mandate by which the New York federal court will be officially notified of the decision will not be issued for thirty days, under the court's rules, unless Lamar should request otherwise. This would give him time to apply for a rehearing, if desired.

FRUITLESS SEARCH FOR SUBMARINE K-5

Vessel Reported to Have Been Missing Since 1 O'Clock Yesterday Morning.

HAS GIVEN NO RESPONSE

With Other Submersibles, Was on Way to Key West-Disappeared During Heavy Fog.

Acting on the assumption that the K-5 had lost her consort and continued on her way to Key West, the Navy Department today gave orders that the wireless station at St. Augustine, Fla., send out constant calls for the K-5. They calculate that the K-5, going at her ordinary cruising speed, would be near enough to the St. N. Y Augustine station some time tonight to permit her to communicate with that station.

CHARLESTON, S. C., January 31. CHARLESTON, S. C., January 31.—
Naval vessels continued to search the Carolina coast today for the United States submarine K-5, reported missing since 1 o'clock yesterday morning, but, according to information available here, their efforts had been futile. The submarine had not responded to wireless calls sent out from shore stations and naval vessels and this led marine men to express fears that the boat had suffered at least an accident to her wireless apparatus. A heavy fog hung over the coast between here and Cape Romain, forty miles north of here, where the K-5 last was sighted, and this made more difficult the task of the searchers.

The K-5 with three other submarines of the same type—the K-1, K-2 and der Tallahassee, left New York Thursday for Key West, Fla., for maneuvers land, Ga. in southern waters. The Tallahasses and the other three submarines arrived the Turks in the Caucasus. The was followed by the Tallahassee's tions, wireless report to Washington navy officials that the K-5 was missing. Shortly after that naval boats in these waters, including the destroyer Worden, the coast guard cutters Yamacraw and Seminole. and the buoy tender Mangrove, were ordered to begin search.

Efforts to ascertain from officials of the Charleston navy yard if they knew whether or not the K-5 had suffered an sian artillery has begun to bombard accident proved futile, all inquiries being referred to Washington.
The K-5 was said to have aboard a crew of from six to eight men.

Rear Admiral Benson, chief of naval operations, talked on the long-distance telephone with Commandant Bryan of the Charleston navy yard at 1 o'clock this afternoon. The navy officials at Charleston had received no word of the K-5 up to that time, but said the searching vessels still were out cruising for the missing submarine.

Admiral Benson said it was quite possible that the K-5, when she became separated from the Tallahassee and her sister ships in the fog Sunday night, might have continued on her voyage to Key West and at the present time was out of wireless range with her short-distance transmission set.

Dispatches from Mexico City to Gen. Carranza's embassy here tell of a marked abatement of the typhus epiwireless range with her short-distance transmission set.

Navy officials were not alarmed by the absence of any report from the submarine. They believe she may have experienced trouble with her engines, but said her battery power was sufficient to keep her under control in that case. Fallure to receive any report from the vessel, they said, might indicate that her wireless apparatus had become deranged. The possibility that the K-5 might have been run down by a steamer or schooner in the fog was discussed among officials, who thought such a collision would have been reported before this by the larger vessel.

Secretary Daniels Orders Search. Secretary Daniels ordered the destroy ers Sterrett and Perkins, en route from sacola to Charleston, to search for th

cient. Those on the Atlantic coast went to Key West from New York without difficulty last winter for maneuvers, and were making the same trip when the K-5 disappeared yesterday. The K boats in the Pacific recently went from San Francisco to Honolulu under their own power, establishing a new record for long-distance cruising for American submarines.

Alexander T. Stuart, director of intermediate instruction and former superintendent of schools, presided. He spoke briefly, congratulating the pupils upon their promotion. Diplomas were presented by the teachers of the respective classes. A program of both orchestral and vocal music was given. The K-5 was equipped with wireless having a sending radius of fifty miles. Navy Department officials said it was robable that the vessel had got beyond reach of its wireless or that the apparatus had been damaged so that it could not report its location. It was pointed out that the vessels sent out TO CALLS BY WIRELESS

State Department dispatches today reported Carransa forces in the Cusi mining district doing all they can to protect Americans. They have been distributed graduates of the eighth division by Roe Fulkerson at the Jefferson School. He spoke of the development and need of vocational education.

BELIEVED BRANDEIS WILL BE CONFIRMED

If the privately expressed opinion of senators, democrats and republicans, supported by concurring views of embers of the lower House, could be represented in votes, according to the way they honestly feel, it may be said that Mr. Brandels' nomination to the Supreme Court would not be confirmed, As it is, the general belief is that he will be confirmed.

President Wilson, according to the bitter complaint of men of his own party in Congress, has put the majority party in the Senate in a tight corner n nominating Mr. Brandels. And right here it may be remarked that this is being chalked up against the President for a future accounting.

The complaint is that if opposition to the confirmation is voiced on the ground upon which it is based, namely, doubt of the judicial temperament of Mr. Brandels, the circumstances of the Several senators, in exchanging views with each other and their friends have protested bitterly against this line of procedure, yet recognizing all the while its possible effectiveness.

It is regarded as a sardonic situation, charged with cynical elements.

Some senators say that this is likely to be a severe test case for the Senate, the acid test of the ability of the Senate, in the limelight of political exigencies, to exercise its constitutional power of scrutiny over appointments, in this particular instance the appointment being regarded as of the highest importance.
